

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

An integrated optical parametric oscillator, having an optical parametric oscillation region to convert a pump source into a signal wave and an idler wave, and a fine steering region to change optical path of the signal wave. The optical parametric oscillator is contoured with a plurality of exterior planes with specific reflective characteristics to form a resonator of the idler wave while directing and diffracting the signal wave with a desired wavelength.